

THE H.E. BUTT FAMILY FOUNDATION

Position Profile August 2018

Development Coordinator

About The H. E. Butt Family Foundation (HEBFF)

The history of the programs runs parallel to the history of the Butt family. Early in the twentieth century, while delivering groceries for his mother's fledgling Kerrville grocery store, a young Howard Butt, Sr., first glimpsed the sublime and expansive landscape that characterized the ranches outside of town. His imagination was piqued, and he vowed that if he were ever able, he would purchase such a place so that other children would have a chance to experience that same wonder.

By 1954, the little grocery store had grown into a thriving regional institution (the H-E-B Grocery Company). Howard and Mary Holdsworth Butt found themselves with the means to purchase the 1,900-acre Wolfe Ranch near Leakey, Texas. The desire from the beginning was to make the property a place for others. Starting with the Foundation Camps (serving underprivileged children), a program of service and hospitality steadily began to take shape along the Frio River.

Laity Lodge hosted its first retreat in June 1961, under the direction of Howard and Mary's son Howard Butt, Jr., who had only recently turned his sights from the grocery business to the work of lay ministry. While the reins of H-E-B would pass to his brother, Charles, Howard's pioneering work would equip the "laity" to rediscover the high calling, the sacredness of all work. The Laity Lodge Program would be built around intimate gatherings of laymen and pastors, men and women, at retreats combining spiritual renewal and physical rest. Over the coming decades, the vision continued to grow, and HEBFF has expanded its current program offerings in the Canyon to five operating areas: Laity Lodge, Laity Lodge Family Camp, Laity Lodge Youth Camp, Foundation Camps, and HEBFF Outdoor. In recent years, under the leadership of Howard Butt, Jr.'s son-in-law, David Rogers, in close collaboration with his wife, Deborah, Foundation resources have increased, and the organization is now broadening its program capabilities beyond the Canyon.
